

Abstract of the Disclosure

Methods, systems, and devices are provided for transmitting information generated from a packet-based communications device. One exemplary method includes receiving information transmitted from a packet-based communications 5 device and converting the information into a digital audio file. The method also includes selecting multiple destinations connected to the packet-based communications device by different mediums and transmitting the digital audio file to the selected destinations.